Hi Ben,
Thank you for coming to our choir practice yesterday. Our summer concert is next Saturday in the school gym. The doors open at 1:30 p.m., and we start singing at 2:00 p.m. Seats near the front fill up fast, so you should come a little early.

We will sing four songs. My favorite is the last song because I have a short solo part! I am a little nervous, so I practice it at home every evening.

After the concert, my parents want to take us to a pancake shop near the station. Are you free until five? Let me know tomorrow at school.

Best,
Mei

A Box for Lost Gloves

Every winter, Mr. Oda, the school caretaker, found many gloves and scarves near the bicycle area. Students dropped them on windy mornings and did not notice. Mr. Oda put them in a box inside his small office, but few students came to ask for them.

One day, a seventh-grade student named Haru lost one blue glove. When he visited Mr. Oda's office, he saw dozens of lost items in the dark box. It took ten minutes to find his glove because everything was mixed together.

Haru had an idea. With Mr. Oda's permission, he and his art club friends painted a wooden board and put hooks on it. They hung the board in the main hallway, right beside the shoe lockers. Each hook had a label for the day of the week when an item was found.

The next week, students started checking the board every morning. Because they could see the items clearly on their way to class, almost all the gloves and scarves went back to their owners within a few days. Mr. Oda thanked Haru and gave the art club some warm cocoa.
