Summer Bird-Watching Walk

Riverside Nature Group
Sunday, July 12, 7:00–9:00 a.m.
Meet in front of North Park Gate

Come and look for summer birds along the river with an experienced guide! Beginners and families are welcome. Participation is free. We have ten pairs of binoculars to lend, so tell us in advance if you need a pair. Wear comfortable walking shoes and a hat. Do not wear bright red or yellow clothes, as they may scare the birds away.

(21) What should people do if they want to borrow binoculars?

1 Pay a fee at North Park Gate.

2 Bring a letter from a teacher.

3 Arrive after 9:00 a.m.

4 Contact the group before the event.

(22) Why are participants asked NOT to wear bright red or yellow clothes?

1 They might frighten the birds.

2 Those colors get dirty easily.

3 Only the guide wears those colors.

4 They are too warm in July.

Borrowing Musical Instruments

From: Mr. Takagi, Brass Band Advisor
To: Brass Band Members
Subject: Instrument practice during the break

Hello everyone,
Summer break starts next week, and the music room will be painted from July 22 to July 26. Because of this work, we cannot practice in the music room during those five days. Instead, we will use Room 104 on the first floor.

If you want to take your school instrument home over the weekend, please write your name and instrument number in the notebook on my desk by Friday afternoon. Never leave instruments in the hallway, even for a short time, because the paint workers will be carrying ladders through the building.

Also, our new sheet music for the autumn festival arrived this morning. Come and pick up your copy after classes today.

Mr. Takagi

A Quiet Shelf at the Bakery

Maya's parents ran a small bakery near an elementary school. Every afternoon around three o'clock, parents and children stopped by to buy melon bread and rolls. While adults chose bread, young children often got bored and ran around the narrow shop. Maya worried that someone might bump into the hot trays.

One rainy Saturday, Maya was cleaning her bookshelf at home. She found about thirty picture books that she had loved when she was little. They were still in clean condition. Instead of selling them, Maya asked her father if she could put a low wooden crate in one corner of the bakery.

Her father agreed, so Maya placed a soft mat and the picture books in the corner. She also wrote a small sign: "Read one here, or borrow it until your next visit!" On Monday afternoon, two little boys sat on the mat right away and looked at a book about trains while their mother shopped.

Soon, something unexpected happened. Neighborhood customers began bringing their own children's old picture books to add to the crate. Some older students even left short sticky notes inside the covers recommending their favorite pages. The shop became safer and calmer, and families started visiting more often just to return a book and buy fresh bread.

A Quiet Shelf at the Bakery — Questions

(26) What worried Maya about the bakery in the afternoon?

1 Nobody bought melon bread.

2 The shop was too far from the school.

3 Children might hit the hot trays while running.

4 Rain came through the front door.

(27) Where did the first thirty picture books come from?

1 The elementary school library.

2 A bookstore near the station.

3 A neighbor who moved away.

4 Maya's own bookshelf at home.

(28) What did Maya's sign allow children to do?

1 Buy picture books for ten yen.

2 Borrow a book until their next visit.

3 Eat bread for free on rainy days.

4 Draw pictures on the bakery wall.

(29) How did older students join the activity?

1 They baked rolls every morning.

2 They built a bigger table.

3 They wrote notes about recommended pages.

4 They carried trays for Maya's father.

(30) How did the picture-book corner change the bakery?

1 It left no room for bread trays.

2 It made the shop safer and brought families back more often.

3 Adults stopped coming at three o'clock.

4 Maya's parents decided to open a bookstore instead.
