Preparing the Class Time Capsule

From: Miku, Class Representative
To: Class 3-B Students
Subject: Items for our graduation time capsule

Hi everyone,
Only three months are left before we graduate! As we decided in homeroom today, Class 3-B will seal a metal time capsule box to open together in five years, when we turn twenty.

Each student may put two things inside: a letter to your twenty-year-old self and one small flat item, such as a club badge, a concert ticket, or a group photo. Please do not put food, batteries, or liquids inside, because they can spoil or leak over five years and ruin everyone's letters.

Put your letter and item inside a clear zip bag with your name written on the outside. Bring your bag to homeroom by next Thursday, December 17. Mr. Aoki will keep the sealed box in the school storage room for us!

Miku

(23) When do Class 3-B students plan to open the time capsule?

1 In five years.

2 Next Thursday.

3 In three months.

4 After ten years.

(24) Why are batteries and liquids NOT allowed inside the box?

1 They are too expensive for students.

2 They might leak and damage everyone's letters.

3 Mr. Aoki collects batteries.

4 They do not fit in a schoolbag.

(25) How should students bring their items by December 17?

1 Inside a clear zip bag with their name on it.

2 Wrapped in newspaper without names.

3 Taped directly onto the blackboard.

4 Sent by mail to Miku's house.

Growing Herbs by the Cafeteria

Behind Minami Junior High School's cafeteria lay a narrow strip of dry ground where nothing grew except weeds. Whenever students lined up for lunch, they looked out the hallway window at that bare space. Shun, who belonged to the gardening club, wondered if the club could turn it into something useful.

Instead of planting ordinary flowers, Shun suggested growing kitchen herbs such as parsley, rosemary, and mint. He spoke with Mr. Ono, the head cook of the school cafeteria. Mr. Ono loved the idea, explaining that fresh herbs were often too expensive to buy in large amounts for school lunches, even though a small pinch made tomato soup and roasted potatoes smell wonderful.

In April, six club members pulled out the weeds, mixed compost into the soil, and planted herb seedlings. Because the cafeteria roof blocked some rain, the students took turns watering the bed every morning before homeroom. Mr. Ono also taught them which leaves to trim so the plants would grow thicker.

By June, the herb bed was bright green and fragrant. The cafeteria served "Garden Herb Potato Soup," and a small card by the lunch counter thanked the gardening club. Seeing classmates enjoy the aroma made every early morning worthwhile for Shun and his friends.
