Preparing for Kindergarten Visit

From: Ms. Aoki, Home Economics Teacher
To: Class 3-B Students
Subject: Picture-card theater at Himawari Kindergarten

Dear Class 3-B,
Next Tuesday morning, our class will walk to Himawari Kindergarten to perform our handmade picture-card stories (kamishibai) for the five-year-old children. You have all drawn colorful, expressive pictures!

During Friday's class, please practice reading your script aloud slowly and clearly. Five-year-olds understand the story much better when you pause for two seconds before sliding each card. Also, check that no staples or sharp tape corners stick out from the edges of your cardboard frames.

On Tuesday, bring clean indoor shoes in a bag and avoid wearing rings, pins, or long necklaces so nothing catches on the children's clothes while playing games afterward.

Ms. Aoki

Preparing for Kindergarten Visit — Questions

(23) What advice does Ms. Aoki give for reading the picture-card stories to five-year-olds?

1 Read as fast as possible to finish in one minute.

2 Use difficult English words.

3 Whisper so the children cannot hear.

4 Pause for two seconds before sliding each card.

(24) What should students check on their cardboard frames?

1 That no staples or sharp tape corners stick out.

2 That the frames weigh at least five kilograms.

3 That their test scores are written on the back.

4 That real glass covers every picture.

(25) Why should students avoid wearing pins or long necklaces on Tuesday?

1 Necklaces make the picture cards heavier.

2 The kindergarten has a metal detector at the gate.

3 It will rain heavily on the walk.

4 They might catch on the children's clothes during games.

Repairing Grandfather's Wall Clock

For as long as fourteen-year-old Yuji could remember, a brown octagonal clock had hung on the dining room wall of his family's house. His late grandfather had bought it when Yuji's father was born. Five years ago, however, a small spring inside broke, and the hands stopped at four twenty. Although the family bought a digital clock, nobody wanted to take the old wooden clock down.

Last month, a tiny clock-repair shop opened near Yuji's cram school. Through its window, Yuji often saw an elderly craftsman wearing a magnifying lens over one eye. Curious, Yuji asked his father if they could take Grandfather's clock there on Saturday.

The craftsman, Mr. Noda, opened the back case gently. "Parts for this model aren't made in factories anymore," he said, "but I can shape a matching brass spring on my lathe." A week later, when Yuji and his father returned, the pendulum was swinging steadily.

That evening at six o'clock, six warm chimes echoed through the dining room. Yuji's father smiled quietly and taught Yuji how to wind the key every Sunday.

Repairing Grandfather's Wall Clock — Questions

(26) When had Yuji's grandfather bought the octagonal wall clock?

1 Five years ago.

2 When Yuji's father was born.

3 When Yuji entered junior high school.

4 Last month.

(27) Where did Yuji notice the small clock-repair shop?

1 Next to his grandfather's hospital.

2 Inside a department store in another city.

3 Near his cram school.

4 On a school trip to Kyoto.

(28) How did Mr. Noda solve the problem of the missing part?

1 He made a matching brass spring himself using his lathe.

2 He ordered a plastic digital motor online.

3 He took a spring out of Yuji's wristwatch.

4 He glued the hands permanently at six o'clock.

(29) How long did the repair take?

1 Ten minutes.

2 One week.

3 Six months.

4 Five years.

(30) What did Yuji's father teach him that evening?

1 How to wind the clock key every Sunday.

2 How to build a wooden dining table.

3 How to open a cram school.

4 How to sell old clocks.
