I want to try badminton first. I have two rackets, so you do not have to bring one. There is a swimming pool too, but I cannot swim well. I would like to watch you swim after lunch.
The cafe at the center is closed this month. We should each bring something to eat and a drink.

See you,

A Useful Map

Last summer, Ren moved to a small town with his family. He did not know anyone there. He liked riding his bicycle, so he often went out to find new places. One afternoon, he found a beautiful pond behind the station. He wanted to tell his grandmother about it, but she did not know how to get there.

Ren decided to draw a map of the town. First, he visited the library to find an old map. It showed the streets, but it did not show the new park or the pond. Ren rode around town again and took notes. He also talked to people at the shops. They told him about a quiet garden and a small bakery.

Ren put these places on his map. He drew pictures and used large letters because his grandmother could not read small writing easily. When the map was finished, he took her to the pond. She found the way by looking at his map.

Later, a librarian saw Ren's map. She asked him to make copies for the library. Ren was surprised, but he was happy to help. Now new people in town can take a free map from the library. Ren has also made friends with some children who used his map.
