4 By visiting the library after November 13.

(27) What will students receive if they collect four stamps?

1 A new notebook.

2 A free comic book.

3 A handmade bookmark.

4 A library bag.

Pottery Workshop Trip

From: Nana
To: Aunt Keiko
Subject: Saturday's pottery class

Dear Aunt Keiko,
Thank you for inviting me to the pottery studio in Mashiko this Saturday! My mother said I can go with you. I have never made a cup on a potter's wheel before, so I am really excited.

What kind of clothes should I wear? Clay might get on my sleeves, so I plan to bring an old long-sleeved shirt and tie my hair back. Also, my father baked some walnut cookies tonight. I will bring a box for us to eat on the train!

I will wait in front of the north ticket gate at 8:45 a.m.

Love,
Nana

Pottery Workshop Trip — Questions

(28) Why is Nana excited about Saturday?

1 She will try making a cup on a potter's wheel for the first time.

2 She will buy a new shirt.

3 She will visit Sapporo.

4 She will bake cookies at school.

(29) Who made the walnut cookies?

1 Nana.

2 Nana's father.

3 Nana's mother.

4 Aunt Keiko.

(30) Where will Nana wait at 8:45 a.m.?

1 In front of the north ticket gate.

2 In front of Aunt Keiko's house.

3 At the pottery studio.

4 Inside a bakery.

The Rainy-Day Board Games

At Aoba Junior High School, students loved playing soccer outside during lunch break. On rainy weeks in June, however, the schoolyard was closed. Many students sat quietly at their desks or crowded the hallways with nothing to do.

Kotaro, a member of the student council, talked with his classmates about this problem. He remembered that his grandfather had taught him shogi and simple card games on rainy afternoons. Kotaro asked teachers if the council could open one empty classroom on the first floor as a "Rainy-Day Game Room" during lunch.

The principal liked the idea, as long as students followed clear rules: games had to finish five minutes before afternoon classes, and everyone had to put all pieces back in their boxes. Teachers and families donated chess sets, reversi boards, and word-card games.

On the first rainy Tuesday, more than thirty students from different grades visited the room. Seventh graders played reversi against ninth graders and made new friends. Soon, some students even looked forward to rainy days!

The Rainy-Day Board Games — Questions

(31) What happened at Aoba Junior High School on rainy days before Kotaro's idea?

1 Students played soccer in the hallways.

2 All students went home early.

3 Lunch break became thirty minutes longer.

4 The schoolyard was closed and many students had little to do.

(32) Who gave Kotaro the hint for his idea?

1 His little sister.

2 A famous chess player.

3 His grandfather.

4 A shop owner.

(33) What was one rule for using the Rainy-Day Game Room?

1 Only ninth graders could enter.

2 Games had to end five minutes before afternoon classes.

3 Students could eat lunch while playing.

4 Students had to bring their own boards.

(34) Where did the board games and card games come from?

1 The student council bought them online.

2 A toy company lent them for a week.

3 Kotaro made all of them in woodshop.

4 Teachers and families donated them.

(35) What good change happened on the first rainy Tuesday?

1 Students from different grades played together and made friends.

2 Kotaro won a city shogi prize.

3 The rain stopped in five minutes.

4 The hallways became wider.
