Borrowing a Yukata for the Festival

From: Cousin Natsuki
To: Mei
Subject: Blue morning-glory yukata for Saturday!

Hi Mei,
Mom told me you're going to the riverside fireworks festival with your classmates this Saturday! You're welcome to wear the light-blue yukata with morning-glory patterns that I wore two summers ago—we're almost the same height now.

I washed and ironed it, and I also put matching wooden geta sandals and a yellow obi belt in a cloth bag. Could you come to our house around 4:30 p.m. on Saturday? My mom can help tie the obi for you in ten minutes!

Have fun,
Natsuki

Borrowing a Yukata for the Festival — Questions

(28) What pattern is on the light-blue yukata Natsuki is lending Mei?

1 Snowflakes.

2 Morning glories.

3 Red maple leaves.

4 Goldfish.

(29) What else did Natsuki put in the cloth bag besides the yukata?

1 Fireworks and matches.

2 A folding umbrella and a camera.

3 Wooden geta sandals and a yellow obi belt.

4 Two tickets for a boat.

(30) Why does Natsuki invite Mei to come at 4:30 p.m. on Saturday?

1 Mei has to iron the yukata herself.

2 Natsuki's mother can help tie the obi belt for Mei.

3 The fireworks start at 4:30 p.m.

4 They need to buy geta sandals at a mall.

The Vegetable Stamp Postcards

During summer vacation, twelve-year-old Riku helped his mother cook curry for lunch. When she sliced the green tops off two okra pods and cut the root base off a bunch of komatsuna greens, Riku noticed something surprising: the cut okra looked like a five-pointed star, and the komatsuna stem looked like a blooming rose!

"Wait—don't throw those scraps into the bin yet!" Riku said. Remembering an art project from elementary school, he dried the vegetable ends on a paper towel, dipped them lightly into watercolor paint on a sponge, and pressed them onto blank white postcards.

Green okra stars and pink komatsuna roses filled the cards in minutes. Riku added a short summer greeting—"How are you doing in the August heat?"—and mailed one card each to his grandparents in Toyama and his uncle in Kobe.

Three days later, his grandmother called laughing. She had framed Riku's postcard beside the kitchen calendar and tried stamping bell-pepper rings herself!

The Vegetable Stamp Postcards — Questions

(31) What did the cut base of the komatsuna greens look like to Riku?

1 A blooming rose.

2 A crescent moon.

3 A small bicycle.

4 A triangle mountain.

(32) What did Riku use the vegetable scraps for before throwing them away?

1 Planting them in a big flowerpot.

2 Boiling them for strawberry jam.

3 Feeding them to his pet turtle.

4 Dipping them in paint to stamp patterns onto postcards.

(33) Who did Riku mail his handmade postcards to?

1 A famous painter in Tokyo.

2 His school principal and homeroom teacher.

3 His grandparents in Toyama and his uncle in Kobe.

4 His pen pal in Canada.

(34) Where did Riku's grandmother put his postcard?

1 In a frame beside her kitchen calendar.

2 Inside a dark drawer.

3 On the front gate outside.

4 Inside a cookbook.

(35) What vegetable did Riku's grandmother try stamping on her own?

1 Carrot sticks.

2 Sweet potatoes.

3 Sliced onions.

4 Bell-pepper rings.
