A Second Life for Sports Gear

Many children try a new sport at school, only to outgrow their shoes, rackets, or protective pads within a single year. Because brand-new equipment can be costly, some families hesitate to let children try unfamiliar sports. Noticeably usable gear often ends up sitting in closets long after young players have moved on.

In the town of Brookside, two high school coaches started a seasonal "Gear Swap Day" at the public gym. Families donate clean sports items they no longer need, and any child in town can select suitable equipment at no charge. Before anything is placed on the tables, volunteer coaches inspect helmets, straps, and soles carefully. Their priority is to ( 21 ). Items that are worn out or damaged are recycled rather than passed on.

Over the past two years, participation in beginner sports classes in Brookside has risen steadily. Parents say children feel freer to experiment when trying a sport does not require an expensive initial purchase. For the coaches, the swap has proved ( 22 ), helping young residents stay active regardless of household budgets.

(21)

1 sell used equipment at the highest possible price

2 limit the gym to professional athletes only

3 persuade children to quit team sports early

4 ensure that every donated item is safe to use

(22)

1 too complicated to hold more than once

2 a cause of declining interest in exercise

3 a practical way to lower barriers to participation

4 an excuse to close beginner sports classes

From: Hannah Cole, Youth Services Librarian
To: High School Interns
Subject: Orientation and schedule update

Dear interns,
Welcome to the Harbor Library summer internship program! Before your shifts begin next week, all interns must attend a ninety-minute orientation this Friday from 2:00 p.m. to 3:30 p.m. in Meeting Room C. During the session, we will practice using the checkout scanner and review how to assist elementary school children choosing summer reading books.

Please note one change to the schedule sent last month. Because the air-conditioning unit on the third floor will undergo repairs on Monday and Tuesday, the quiet study hall there will be closed on those two days. Interns originally assigned to the third floor on Monday or Tuesday will help organize the picture-book corner on the first floor instead.

Each intern will receive an official library badge on Friday. Please wear a collared shirt and comfortable shoes; sandals are not permitted for safety reasons when moving book carts. You may store lunches in the staff break room refrigerator, provided your container is clearly labeled with your name.

If an unexpected school commitment prevents you from attending Friday's orientation, please reply by Wednesday noon so we can arrange a brief make-up briefing on Thursday afternoon.

Warm regards,
Hannah Cole

4A Notice About the Summer Library Internship　設問 (23)〜(25)

1 Its air-conditioning system is being repaired.

2 Elementary school classes have reserved it.

3 Checkout scanners are being replaced on every floor.

4 New picture books are being delivered there.

(24) Which rule must interns follow regarding their clothes or belongings?

1 They are not allowed to enter the staff break room.

2 They must put their names on lunch containers kept in the fridge.

3 They must buy their own library badges before Friday.

4 They may wear sandals when moving heavy book carts.

(25) What should interns do if they cannot attend Friday's orientation?

1 Go directly to the third floor on Monday morning.

2 Wait until Wednesday of next week to start their shifts.

3 Contact Hannah Cole by Wednesday noon to arrange a Thursday session.

4 Ask a classmate to pick up their badge without telling staff.

4 B 次の英文の内容に関して、(26)から(29)までの質問に対する答えとして最も適切なもの、または文を完成させるのに最も適切なものを1, 2, 3, 4の中から一つ選びなさい。

Why Small Bakeries Are Changing Their Schedules

In many towns, traditional bakeries used to display full trays of every kind of bread from early morning until closing time. Customers appreciated seeing abundant choices even late in the afternoon. Behind the scenes, however, keeping shelves full all day meant that unsold loaves frequently had to be thrown away at night, increasing ingredient costs and food waste.

Recently, a growing number of independent bakers have moved away from this model. At Sunrise Crust Bakery, for example, the owner noticed from sales records that crusty dinner rolls sold mostly after four o'clock, whereas fruit pastries were popular before ten in the morning. Instead of baking everything at dawn and hoping it would sell, the bakery began baking smaller batches tailored to each time of day.

At first, the owner worried that customers would complain if a particular item ran out early. When the bakery placed a simple chalkboard schedule outside the door showing what came out of the oven at 8:00 a.m., noon, and 4:00 p.m., customers reacted positively. Commuters started timing their visits to buy warm bread straight from the oven.

To handle the small amount of bread still left at closing time, Sunrise Crust partnered with a nearby evening soup kitchen and offered next-morning "surprise bags" at half price. While small-batch baking requires more careful planning by kitchen staff, the owner found that cutting daily waste allowed the shop to buy higher-quality local flour without raising prices.

Food researchers note that customers' expectations play a major role in reducing retail waste. When shoppers understand that an empty tray late in the day reflects careful production rather than poor service, neighborhood shops can operate far more sustainably.

4B Why Small Bakeries Are Changing Their Schedules 設問 (26)〜(29)

(26) What problem was caused by keeping bakery trays full until closing time?

1 Customers refused to visit bakeries in the morning.

2 Bakers could make only one type of bread each day.

3 Local flour became impossible to purchase.

4 Shops often had to throw away unsold bread at night.

(27) How did Sunrise Crust Bakery change its baking method?

1 It baked smaller amounts matched to demand at different hours.

2 It opened only two days a week in winter.

3 It stopped making fruit pastries completely.

4 It required all customers to order bread a week ahead.

(28) How did customers respond to the chalkboard schedule outside the shop?

1 They complained that bread at four o'clock was too warm.

2 They stopped buying dinner rolls in the evening.

3 Many timed their visits to buy freshly baked bread.

4 They asked the bakery to remove the chalkboard.

(29) What benefit did reducing daily waste bring to Sunrise Crust Bakery?

1 It could use better local flour without increasing its prices.

2 It never had a single loaf left at closing time.

3 It was able to open five new branches overseas.

4 Kitchen staff no longer needed to plan their work.
